

Sensory Strategies In Action: Putting Sensory Strategies To Work For People With Developmental Disabilities

with Kim Barthel Occupational Therapist

With 25 years of experience in the field of occupational therapy, Kim's approach to serving persons with disabilities is visionary and eclectic yet grounded and "doable" in daily life. Come and learn how the science of occupational therapy and neurobiology can be integrated into the support of children and adults with developmental disabilities. Kim will also focus on issues of aging.

*Participants do not need to have attended "part one" in order to benefit from this workshop.
